Oba Saheed Elegushi Marries Another Wife, Hadiza Tanko.

Only a rascal or brute from the bay of crooks could fault a King for exhibiting his divine right to love. Thus with no attempt at mischief, it couldn't be wrong or distasteful for Oba Saheed Elegushi to fall head over heels in love again with another woman. And if the subject of his affection is none other than a drop-dead beauty, Hadiza Tanko, so be it.

You couldn't fault Oba Elegushi for falling in love, and you couldn't hate him for seeking her hand in marriage, even if you tried. Elegushi is reckoned to be at an impressionable age, his level of power, influence and street cred nevertheless, to actually take his eyes off fine females.

In Africa, especially in this part, kings enjoy massive royal influence so much that if they chose to teem their palaces with as many women as they so wish, they are not expected to be questioned by any human, rather, they should be given all the support to make their wishes come to fruition; this overriding influence is so pronounced in the South West that the Yorubas call kings 'Kabiyesi,' which literally translates to 'he whose actions cannot be questioned.'

Interestingly, however, debonair Lagos monarch, Oba Saheed Elegushi, officially married his second wife, Hadiza Tanko, in Yankaba, Kano State, Friday, May 3rd. Drop-dead gorgeous and light-skinned, Hadiza works in an oil and gas firm and has reportedly been warming the heart of the young monarch for a few years especially whenever the stress of monarchy and business become overwhelming. Though sources at the palace have not categorically confirmed the disposition of the King's first wife, Olori Aramide Sekinat, obviously, it should not have come to her as much surprise because he is a king and polygamy comes with the terrain.

The shock, for her, close friends say, is that she and the king were high school lovers and being so cosmopolitan and young, polygamy, perhaps, shouldn't have occurred. But she thought wrong. Married in 2003 at a colourful ceremony that had two of Nigeria's biggest musicians, King Sunny Ade and K1 De Ultimate, on the bandstands, they are blessed with three adorable daughters.

But as it is constant with everything in life, change occurred. While Olori Aramide is still her beautiful self, her utopian role as the woman who titillates and tends to every need of the handsome monarch; the woman who ensures that the royal libido never lacks attention and excitement, has not dwindled. But, so besotted with the new Olori that Elegushi doesn't let her out of his sight for too long else he would be lovelorn and forlorn.

In his early 40s, the Elegushi of Ikateland ranks as one of the youngest traditional rulers in the country. A graduate of the Lagos State University, he was a former personal assistant to the former governor of Lagos State, Asiwaju Bola Ahmed Tinubu. He also worked with former Governor Babatunde Raji Fashola before resigning in 2010 after it became apparent he would succeed his father as king of one of the largest and most exclusive communities in Lagos.

Lagos Launches New Buses With Free Service On Five Routes

The Lagos State Government on Wednesday launched the new buses under the Bus Reform Initiative (BRI) with free service on five routes, assuring that the development would redefine public transportation and make the State globally competitive.

Specifically, the free service was launched across five routes, including Berger to Tafawa Balewa Square (TBS), Berger to Oshodi, Oshodi to TBS, Ikeja to Alausa and Ikeja to Oshodi to commemorate the Workers Days, after which normal service is to start on May 2, 2019.

the people have also been factored into the whole process.

“In each of the buses, we have six emergency exits and First Aid Box, while every seat has a dedicated USB port for charging of phones, free Wi-fi, television and CCTV cameras which are linked to our control centre to monitor everything going on in the buses, among other features.

“We have also taken the issue of people with disabilities specially and there are seats reserved for them in the buses,” Olajide said.

At the Oshodi Transport Interchange, a cross-section of Lagos residents who enjoyed the free service, lauded the State Government especially Governor Akinwunmi Ambode for the buses and the infrastructure provided to support the transport reforms, saying the development was commendable.

A resident, Mr Adabayo David, said: “This is a great initiative and I believe that if Lagos can get it right, every other State can get it right and I must give kudos to the visionary Governor, Mr Akinwunmi Ambode for this wonderful initiative. Everything is working fine in the bus and as you can see, I’m charging my phone.

“Give Kudos To The Visionary Gov. Akinwunmi Ambode For This Wonderful Initiative”.

Speaking at Ikeja Bus Terminal, one of the modern terminals constructed as part of the BRI, an official of the Lagos Bus Services Limited, the operator of the buses, Mr Timi Olajide said it was a good thing that the buses have now been finally launched for the use of the people.

He said out of the 5,000 buses planned for the initiative, the government was launching the scheme with 820 high and medium capacity buses, adding that aside the intelligent transport system component of the initiative which will aid Lagosians to plan their journeys, comfort and safety of

Juliet Ibrahim Defends Single Mothers, Says Men Are J**ks

Ghanaian actress, Juliet Ibrahim, while decrying the rate at which single mothers are being attacked and relegated in the society, asked if men don't deserve same treatments.

The actress who is also a single mother of one said the society praises men for being jerks and adulterers, while the women are being looked-down upon for ending the relationships, despite bearing their children.

She wrote "Isn't it funny how people seem to forget that there is no rewind button to undo everything that didn't work out in our lives? When I see the attacks on single mothers including myself It's always mind-baffling, to be honest. So what is the decision-making sin that single mothers are so badly guilty of? Being single?! Suddenly, "Single mother" is defined as a woman who's bad and deserves bashing?! If a single mother is not in a relationship, regardless of the reason; she's always to blame, yet we give men praises for being adulterers and jerks so long as he's "good to his kids .

If a man doesn't get "tagged" or "bashed" for actually being at fault for why a relationship ended, why isn't the woman given the same leniency, even if why the relationship ended wasn't her fault? Or maybe it was her fault but it was still for the best? Telling my story soon enough. It's about time. #ProudMother #SingleMother

Being A Prostitute Is Not A Crime - Nse Ikpe-Etim

Ahead of the cinema release of the new movie which she stars in, 'Heaven's Hell', on May 10, 2019, Nollywood actress Nse Ikpe-Etim has condemned the alleged sexual harassment of women labelled a prostitutes by police officers after a raid on an Abuja night club.

She disclosed this on Saturday during an event she hosted with her fans at the event, tagged, 'Conversation with Nse' which took place in Lekki, Lagos.

While relating on the incident, the actress said that: "being a prostitute is not a crime. It is a job that I chose."

Speaking earlier during the session on the role of money in relationships, she advised men to "be ready because women have decided that we will work. We will no longer rely on men. When I say work, it's real work ooo. All work is work."

The Federal Capital Territory Police Command said it will probe the allegations of sexual assault against its men and punish those found erring.

On April 27, policemen attached to the FCTA Joint Task Team arrested 34 female strippers at Caramelo night club in Abuja and labelled them as prostitutes. About 70 other women were arrested in other clubs. Arraigned before a mobile court, the women were granted bail on April 29.

The women alleged some policemen extorted them, beat them and sexually molested them after they were arrested and detained at Utako Police Division between April 26 and April 29, 2019. They also accused the policemen of releasing those who bribed them with money.

And as videos of the raid and interviews of some of the affected women trended on social media, more Nigerians, including Civil Society Organisations, have joined in condemning the police for the act.

On Friday, the Command spokesman, ASP Gajere Danjuma, said, "a high-powered team has been constituted to investigate the veracity of the allegation."

He said that any erring officer would be dealt with.

"In this regard, invitations have been sent out to relevant individuals that may assist in getting to the root of the matter."

Says Fraudsters Would Not End Well

Ace comedian, Ali Baba, has laid curses on fraudsters who go on spending spree with money obtained from fraudulent activities.

Criticizing the activities, Ali Baba shared the story of a woman who was recently scammed recently.

According to him, the woman was revealed to be a struggling lady who works hard every day to work, care for her children and pay her bills.

She was called by some scammers who made her disclose her bank details before defrauding her of her money.

We cannot talk about these things. Because some people say country is hard. So they are scamming those who are working hard to survive. And when they scam the poor struggling people, they use the money to go pop champagne. That's how they fight poverty pic.twitter.com/E3kQQaKdcY

The bitter war between star actress, Yvonne Jegede and ex-beauty queen, Dabota Lawson is getting messy. The actress has taken to her Instagram story to lambast the former beauty queen for shading her on social media...

"I happen to be dragged online by Ignorant clowns, for what I know nothing about? Lol. I didn't know about the lady in question (before her marriage and after) neither do I mix with their clique to be caught in a foolish conversation about who I don't know and have never met."

"Social media has a way of bringing people together. I am certain no be me them dey talk about but, feel free to add more followers for me 1.3M followers in a short while. Thanks to you all."

For those who don't know, the war between the duo commenced when Yvonne took to her Instagram page to show support for Regina Daniels who is being bashed for marrying a 60year old billionaire, Ned Nwoko.

She wrote; "I don't understand why this girl's decision has become everybody's headache. @Regina.Daniels Do you please, the world will adjust, cause even if you give somebody your kidney, people will still talk."

However, Dabota Lawson who was not impressed by the screen diva's support for Reginna Daniels, lambasted her as she reminded Yvonne of what she said about her before now. She wrote.... "A certain Nollywood actress used to mock me and make statements like; "I can't believe she got married for money" actually let me use her words; "Na wa wetin girls dey do for money eh God forbid", then I think she married for love and the marriage crashed with a child involved, then now she's chasing clout or maybe more understanding that love or money, age difference or no age difference relationships can crumble."

"So, she's out here shouting; "mind your business and leave Regina alone. This life shaaaaaaacaaaa. SMH!!! In this world with this one life you have just to do."

Pastor Adeboye Urges Single Ladies Not To Marry Jobless Men

The General Overseer of the Redeemed Christian Church of God (RCCG), Pastor Enoch Adeboye, has warned single ladies to avoid marrying jobless men.

Jobless men, he said, have the tendencies to use, dump and abandon such ladies.

Adeboye spoke on Sunday at the May Special Prayer and Thanksgiving service by the RCCG Throne of Grace, National Headquarters Ebute Metta, Lagos.

According to him, a woman should not marry a man that has no work "if not you will be the work."

He noted it is not sinful for a single lady to politely ask any man proposing marriage whether or not he has a job.

Stating that women are conceived as helpmeets, Adeboye argued only somebody who has a job can be helped.

Adeboye, who spoke through the Assistant General Overseer, (RCCG) Personnel and Administration Pastor Johnson Odesola, said the man is key and the woman has only come to help.

"Whatever the woman does is help. The man is major director in the house," he stressed.

He stated taking care of the homes does not rest on the woman alone but the man and the woman who have come to help. Adeboye blamed lack of proper home training for most of the ills in the society.

"I still remember when I was young. My father will tell me that this name is the name of my father. Don't spoil the name. So I was scared to do wrong. I could not shake the hand of a lady until I was 23.

"Learning for any child should start from the home and parents should be their child first teachers.

"The wife and the husband are the main teachers who will teach and model godly character to their children," he stated.

In his sermon, Adeboye, urged all Christians to strengthen their faith, saying there would always be storm in the lives of the believers.

"Whatever the woman does is help. The man is major director in the house."

Benny Ark Sacked By Cool FM After Calling Chidinma Out

OAP Benny Ark of City FM has been sacked today by the management of the radio station just weeks after he created a controversy online.

Report say he was allegedly sacked by the MD of City FM, Mrs. Adedoja Allen, over his issues with colleagues.

The OAP was seen weeks ago in a video stating that singer Chidinma was the reason why Kizz Daniel decided to start his #Fuckyouchallenge simply because they broke up.

However, the information by Benny Ark didn't sit well with Chidinma's camp which later made the OAP to tender an apology.

According to Chidinma's manager, Rasheed Ogunsanwo:

"When she heard the news, Chidinma was just laughing. Left to her, she would not have said a word or written a letter to the radio station or the OAP. It was her management that decided to take the issue up because it was blatant rubbish. If the story was true, Chidinma would have lost her cool.

"Chidinma is an artiste who doesn't interfere in public issues; she just focuses on her music. It was annoying when an OAP came out to say what he wasn't sure of. And he said it with so much confidence; that pissed everyone off.

On Tuesday, we wrote to the management of the radio station. We asked them to tell us where they got the information from. I think he (Benny Ark) has tendered an apology. But despite the apology, we would still look at the situation and decide if we should take the matter up legally. It was obvious the OAP was lying."

Daddy Freeze Assault His Wife – Princess Mikky Attah

Veteran journalist and former Cool FM broadcaster, Princess Mikky Attah has accused OAP Daddy Freeze of being a hypocrite who assaulted his wife in front of his kids.

According to Princess Mikky Attah who stated the she was the one who interviewed Daddy Freeze when he was employed by Cool FM, she was saddened to hear that his marriage turned horrible.

"Daddy Freeze was to later straighten ME out on the business side of life, teaching me how to make my skills marketable, and not keep "paying my dues" all my lifetime! He was then hosting the Coca-cola Millionaire Show on TV .After I left Cool Fm, I saw snippets of Daddy Freeze and the FreeNation Movement, and the Free the Sheeple Movement, and I was happy for him. I was unsettled when I saw his post about his 'partner' – meaning the rumours of his marriage break-up were true. Greater was my shock when he posted his pictures after being "battered", as in domestic abuse while still married. Counter accusations kept flying (my ex-wife travelled out of the country with my kids without my knowledge). I couldn't help but wander – what role did their church play in preventing all this.

"Also, what was the role the couple themselves played? I've noticed that a lot of times when couples see that there is 'fire on the mountain', they seem to choose to keep feigning that all is well, rather than reaching out early for Godly counsel. Their first thoughts are to "please" society and 'keep' the marriage; but they do nothing new whatsoever, towards the 'keeping.' I am not 'active' on social media and so I missed a whole lot – but a certain man came out very publicly to announce that his wife was living illegally with Freeze, even while legally married to him! I was totally shaken, and reading further, I saw that the man said his wife had left their base in Port Harcourt and had relocated with their 4 children to Lagos. She had sued him for divorce and was living with Daddy Freeze!

"I am sad with myself I adjudged this as personal, and kept completely quiet. But now that my newsapp bombards me with Freeze reacts to .... Freeze reacts to.... every single time, I feel I have to speak to him, IN LOVE, and as a friend. From all responses I have seen, Daddy Freeze brooks no contrary opinion. But as one who knows him, I can also speak what's true to him. I suppose I could get his personal contacts for a one – on – one. But then that will rob a lot of people of knowledge, people who react based ONLY on what they read, who do not have the benefit of the true picture of Daddy Freeze I have painted. Many more people could benefit from this.

Heartbroken? Seyi Law Has Message For You

Comedian, Seyi Law has sent a heartwarming message to the brokenhearted who find it difficult to heal.

Seyi on his Instagram handle noted that being hurt may be of the difficult things to go through in life while ascertaining that he has had his experiences too.

Can I talk to you? I am not a preacher, but I have had my experiences. One of the most difficult things to help anybody do is HEALING. It is a great deal to HEAL, but it comes with it's price of compromise. Sometimes, the most difficult HURTS to heal from are those inflicted by those we truly LOVE. There's no amount of paybacks that truly SATISFY our desire of equal PUNISHMENT. Your heart is calm today and tomorrow, the memories come flooding and the BLEEDING is like a burst ARTERY. You keep in the pain and smile yet, your imagination is a dagger to their throat when they smile back. Often times, you are quiet because you carry your

BAGS of SECRETS so you don't want to dive in DIRTY, but their CALMNESS stirs your UGLY DEMONS to just burn it all done. It is not a CRIME to hurt and never is it a SIN to let it out, but you must understand that whatever way you choose to deal with it, the most important thing is that, YOU MUST NOT LOSE YOURSELF even if you lose everyone. May God HEAL every HURTING HEART and give us GRACE to keep a HOLD of OURSELVES while we pass through the HEALING PROCESS. SEYILAW.

Wall Gecko, My Tithe Still Works For Me – Akpororo To Daddy Freeze

Comedian Akpororo, while reacting to Daddy Freeze' mockery of him over the alleged low turn-out at this recent show, has called the OAP a wall gecko.

This was after Daddy Freeze asked if the tithe wasn't working anymore or if the comedian failed to remit the one for the previous month.

Akpororo in a video he made on Instagram, said he still pays his tithe and it is still working for him very fine.

But Akpororo, in his statement, debunked the rumour of the low turn-out at the show and claimed it was a sold-out show.

Releases List Of Alleged Corrupt Contractors Following FOI Request

The Minister of Power, Works and Housing, Babatunde Fashola, has forwarded to the Socio-Economic Rights and Accountability Project (SERAP) documents from some of the ministry's agencies providing details regarding the names of contractors that allegedly collected money for electricity projects but failed to execute any projects.

Fashola also invited SERAP to "inspect a compendium of verified and paid/outstanding liabilities of contractors, kept at the offices of the Nigeria Electricity Liability Management Limited/GTE."

This development was disclosed on Sunday in a statement by SERAP deputy director, Kolawole Oluwadare.

It said the ministry's letter with reference number FMP/LU/R2K/2016/T/40 and signed on Fashola's behalf by the Permanent Secretary (Power), Louis Edozien, was sent to SERAP last week.

The letter reveals that: "Pow Technologies Limited, an Abuja based company, was in 2014 awarded a contract for the supply and installation of test and maintenance equipment relays, etc to various NAPTIN regional training centers (RTCs) (LOT15), with the total contract sum of N87,763,302.40, out of which N79,404,892.66 was paid to Pow Technologies Limited."

According to the ministry's letter, although the contract was awarded in 2014, only 13 of the 19 items have so far been supplied, with 6 items outstanding.

The details of the 6 items that Pow Technologies Limited has allegedly failed to supply are not provided by the ministry but the letter indicates some of the action the ministry said it has taken to ensure: "completion of the project, address criminal breach of contract and take remedial action."

The ministry said that while the contractors undertook to take remedial action, they have failed to complete the project for which funds have been released.

The ministry pointed out that it submitted a petition to the Commissioner of Police, Abuja on January 13, 2016, and that the police instituted a case for the prosecution of Messrs Pow at the Upper Area Court.

The ministry also said it has sought and received legal advice to pursue a civil action at the FCT High Court while a report of criminal breach of contract has been made to the Economic and Financial Crimes Commission (EFCC).

Responding, SERAP said: "We welcome Mr Fashola's latest response and the information regarding Pow Technologies Limited. But we need details of names of other contractors that have collected public funds yet failed to execute power projects.

"We will continue to push the Ministry and its agencies to reveal more details of alleged corrupt contractors and companies, as contained in our FOI request. We will continue to pursue our FOI suit at the Federal High Court, Lagos, before Justice Chuka Austine Obiozor, a Professor of Law, who has granted an order for leave in the case."

Mr Fashola's latest letter to SERAP reads in part: "I write with respect to the Ministry's letter regarding details of alleged corrupt contractors and to forward the attached responses from some of the Ministry's Agencies namely: National Bulk Electricity Trading Plc; National Power Training Institute of Nigeria and Nigeria Electricity Liability Management Limited/GTE for your information."

It would be recalled that Mr Fashola had earlier said in response to SERAP's FOI request that: "the Ministry has searched for the requested information on details of alleged contractors and companies that collected money for electricity projects and failed to execute any projects, but we could not find it from our records."

However, SERAP disagreed with the response, saying: "The public expectation is that government information, when in the hands of any public institutions and agencies, should be available to the public, as prescribed by the FOI Act. The FOI Act should always be used as an authority for disclosing information rather than withholding it."

Mr Fashola in a follow-up letter dated March 4, 2019, to SERAP's reaction promised to: "refer the request for details of alleged contractors and companies that collected money for electricity projects and failed to execute any projects to the ministry's agencies for necessary action and appropriate response."

We will continue to push ...to reveal more details of alleged corrupt contractors and companies

She appreciated her father's efforts for teaching her that the word 'impossible' does not exist. For many things, so very many things... For teaching me that the word "impossible" doesn't exist. For pushing me to build resolve, persistence and grit For instilling humility in me... refusing to buy me a new school bag, and insisting that I got it repaired after I cut it up myself as a 9 year old – just because I wanted a new school bag. For introducing me to Highlife music But most importantly, For giving me my very first taste of Kir Royale! 66 Hearty Cheers Dad! Thank you for the gift of you. ❤️

Simi Part Ways With Steve Babaeko's X3M Records

X3M Music has just announced the departure of one of its recording artistes Simisola Ogunleye simply known as 'Simi' following the expiration of her recording contract.

The Lagos-based label confirmed in a statement signed by A&R executive Vincent Nwanze, that both parties have determined to not renew the contract.

Her special voice, an unassuming look, and writing talent are what attracted her to X3M when she was signed in 2014. Her debut album for X3M (her career second) was released to local and international acclaim in September 2017, and named album of the year in 2018, by The Headies Awards.

Simi's final album for X3M music 'Omo Charlie Champagne' was released on April 19, 2019. X3M music is reputed to have a bias for original, alt music; especially in an industry dominated by pop.

X3M Music's management said: "we only sign artistes that we love and believe in. We know our taste in music is rather different; but we only sign talents who meet that taste. Fortunately, we have been able to find millions of music lovers here and abroad, who share similar tastes, as is evident in the success of all the artistes we have worked with, including Simi who is without any doubt one of the biggest music talents in the country today..." X3M Music, part of the X3M group, was founded in 2008 by Steve Babaek.

Lagos Lawmaker Lauds F.G On Release Of Zainab Aliyu

A Lagos lawmaker, Mr Segun Olulade, has commended President Muhammadu Buhari for securing the release of Ms Zainab Aliyu, who was arrested by Saudi Arabian authorities for alleged possession of codeine.

Olulade, a member representing Epe Constituency II in the Lagos State House of Assembly, also congratulated Zainab's parents and applauded the Federal Government for the role it played in her release.

"If not for the swift intervention of the FG... Only God knows what the fate of Zainab Would Have Been"

The two-term lawmaker wondered why some individuals would have the guts and confidence to plant drugs in luggage belonging to other people.

"If not for the swift intervention of the Federal Government and other well-meaning individuals, only God knows what the fate of Zainab and Ibrahim Abubakar would have been.

"This calls for serious concern, and the National Drug Law Enforcement Agency (NDLEA) has a lot to do to ensuring that those responsible for this dastardly act are seriously dealt with.

"Every other concerned security agency must rise up to the occasion and ensure that security at our airports is tightened.

"I see no reason why drugs should scale through our security here at our airports and get to another country.

"If the security agencies responsible for securing the airports are doing their jobs diligently, then people should not jet out of the country, only for them to get to their destinations and be caught," the lawmaker said in a statement.

Olulade, a former Chairman, House Committee on Health Services as well as Information and Strategy, also commended the Senior Special Assistant to the president on Diaspora, Mrs Abike Dabiri-Erewa, for taking up the matter and ensuring the release of the two Nigerians.

NAN recalls that Zainab Aliyu, a final year student of Yusuf Maitama-Sule University, Kano, was arrested in Saudi Arabia on Dec. 25, 2018, for alleged drug trafficking.

She travelled to Saudi Arabia for lesser Hajj with her mother and elder sister.
